no longer able to travel she used her influence with other members of the tribe on my behalf. She was a childless widow with comparatively few demands on her time and as her interest in the story of John McCoy developed she became more and more eager to see it finished. Although she didn't live to see the book in print she did read the completed manuscript and hers were among the first words of commendation it evoked.

There were times, of course, during the search when I wondered if it were worth all the trouble and expense. Mrs. Hillis' encouragement helped to pull me out of the Slough of Despond, and then, after the first chapter was written, another lift came. A distant cousin—distant in space as well as in degree of relationship—wrote that he'd heard I'd gathered the story of the start of our McCoys in this country, and offered me twenty-five dollars for the privilege of reading the single chapter then completed. What's more the check was enclosed with the letter. It was the first sign that anyone might care enough about the material to pay for it, and it was a spur.

And so, a little at a time, the story of John McCoy's life crossed my desk. True, there were gaps in it—there still are. One of them concerns his second marriage. Jincy Collins McCoy died at the age of fifty-seven, a victim of tuberculosis, the same disease that carried off her sister and left that sister's children for her to raise. Five years later her husband married again, but his second wife, Elinor Finley, lived only a short time. What she was like, where she came from, who her people were, remain unsolved mysteries. A greater riddle is why John McCoy's children never referred to her, nor did he himself in the diaries written after her death. The full story is one I hoped might come to light with the publication of the book, but like the missing diaries it remains lost in limbo.

Another gap is how McCoy felt about slavery. The conflict over it was brewing throughout the years in which he kept his diaries, yet there is not the slightest indication in them of his feeling on the matter. His three brothers, with whom he was on the best of terms, were strong in their feeling that slavery was wrong, and if he differed with them it is the only instance in which they did not see eye-to-eye on a question of morals. Two of those brothers left wills that showed how strongly they felt on the subject. Isaac McCoy wrote in his will that he was the owner of a young slave woman and her children, having bought them out of pity lest the family be divided. He left explicit instructions that the slave children were to be given the same kind of education as his own, and at the expense of his estate, while the mother was to be given her freedom as soon as she had worked long enough for her wages to balance her purchase price. Another brother, Royce McCoy, wrote a letter of sound advice to his children. In it are these words: "Never, my dear children, stain your hands with the blood of the poor oppressed negroes. That is, take no part in oppressing them, in buying, selling or hiring them, and let not one cent come into your possession by the traffic in them." And in his will he provided that a small sum of money that was due him, his share of an inheritance that came from the sale of a slave, was to be multiplied by four and used either to buy that slave's freedom or as a contribution to one of the antislavery organizations, the American Colonization Society.

* we have other information I will send you soon; but Royce McCoy is definitely.

Perhaps there is a sound reason for John McCoy's strange silence on this subject. There were, on the Indiana side of the Ohio River, stations on the underground railway which was used by escaping slaves. Remember Eliza crossing the ice? It is barely possible that McCoy had a part in helping those fugitive slaves. Perhaps some of the innocent-sounding recurrent expressions he used in his diaries, expressions such as "tended to some little domestic affairs," were his code for activities having to do with the underground railway.

Much material was gathered by mail and through visitors, but not all the facts about McCoy came to me while I sat like a spider in the middle of her web. There was other material, much of it quite important, that necessitated traveling. I visited some sixteen libraries and historical institutions, scattered from Connecticut to Texas; I searched in courthouses and in old cemeteries and, finally, I visited a number of the scattered cousins who'd written me. The courthouses were often, to put it bluntly, drafty and smelly; the old cemeteries had briars that snagged my stockings, but the cousins were a real delight.

One trip took me to Washington, where I consulted the National Archives and two other libraries. To a researcher, the National Archives is like a dream come true. Once the

INCORPORATION.

Kingston was incorporated by act of the Legislature, November 21, 1857, as a town. The following is an extract from section 1 of the act of incorporation:—

The inhabitants of the tract or district of country known by the name of Kingston, in the county of Caldwell, situate and lying in the following boundary, to wit: The east half of the southwest quarter of section 22, in township 56, of range 28, shall be, and they are hereby created a body politic and corporate, by the name and style of the "Town of Kingston," etc.

In April, 1872, the foregoing section was amended and the boundary extended by the Legislature, so that the limits of the town should comprise "the east half of the southeast quarter of section 21, and the west half of the southwest quarter, and also a strip 59 rods wide of the south side of the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 22; also, that part of the west half of the northwest quarter of section 27 which lies north of Log creek, all in township 56, range 28.

The present population of Kingston is about 600, although 750 is claimed. It has three general stores, one exclusive grocery and provision store, one hardware store, three drug stores, two livery stables, one furniture store, two hotels, two newspapers—the Caldwell County Sentinel and Kingston Times; one banking house, the Caldwell County Bank, capital $50,000, John D. Cox, proprietor; two or three millinery establishments, mechanics' shops, a steam flour and grist mill, ten or a dozen attorneys, half a dozen physicians, etc. There is a fine two-story brick public school building, and a comfortable frame school-house for the colored children of the district. There are three church buildings—Christian, Presbyterian, and Congregationalist. The town is connected with Hamilton by telephone.

Free from the bustle and busy turmoil of large railroad towns, Kingston is without many of their advantages; but it is also without many of their disadvantages, without their vices and their crimes, their corruption and prevailing sentiment of distrust and thought of evil. The people of Kingston are generous, hospitable, able, socially disposed, and confiding. The stranger, if his walk is at all circumspect, is not looked upon with suspicion, but is trusted and made welcome. The true nobility and gentility of character of the men and women of this town can not be too highly commented upon. The slanderer and the backbiter do not ply their calling here. People choose to hear and to talk of the good traits of their neighbors rather than of their weaknesses.

The young people are pure in character and correct in true deportment, but withal are full of meriment and jollity, fond of each other's society and of harmless recreation and amusement. The young ladies are alike well qualified to serve in the kitchen, to grace the parlor, and to shine in the ball room and at the reception, and their many charms of person and manner attract to them hosts of admirers.

God bless and prosper the people of Kingston!

Since we know Marion and Rice had both passed away before that, it would appear that George and Lemuel III lived to young adulthood, though neither show up on the 1870 census. What became of them is not known, though if they lived they did not stay in Caldwell County, Missouri. They are not listed in Kingston cemetery records. (Note June 1899 - received copy of Lemuel Dunn's estate settlement)

A Lemuel (McClelland?) was living in California in 1883 - "brother?" Possibly that was he? Description similar to Lemuel Dunn in California

Try Calif census index 1870/1880 - later info - 1 tried hard & even looked some county records as well as census indexes, with no luck. Many Duns had to California from Ireland in the recent past, complicating the search!

Per American People's Encyclopedia, the forty-niners were drawn to California by gold discoveries of 1848. Within a year about 42,000 arrived by land and 30,000 by sea, the great mass being from the US, though Latin America furnished many. Those from the Atlantic slope came mainly by sea, either around Cape Horn or crossed the isthmus of Panama. Either journey was fraught with hardship and danger. Those who came by land gathered at St. Joseph or Independence, Missouri and started about June, the first wagon reaching Sacramento in August.....the immigrants were of every nationality, class, and color. Sons of rich families, drawn by adventure and the desire to found their own fortunes, young men fresh from college, shopkeepers selling out small businesses, plain farmers and workmen, as well as criminals of the worst stamp. All struggled, fought, and turned into a new type.

I know hardly anything about Uncle Ben White's life (or his wives). Would appreciate any information

All of these children were living in 1900, according to their mother (on census) but one of them had died by 1910, when a grand daughter, Beryl C. Johnston, age 18, was living with her grandmother, the widowed Cynthia Jones. Was Beryl the child of the deceased daughter? Cynthia was called a seamstress.

The 1900 & 1910 censuses show her next door to Emma Dunn

*In an article printed in the US Biographical and Portrait Gallery of Eminent and Self-Made Men, Missouri Volume, publ. 1878, Judge Lemuel Dunn, Jr., said that all four girls and two of the boys of his first marriage were still living. Since we know Marion and Rice had both passed away before that, it would appear that George and Lemuel III lived to young adulthood, though neither show up on the 1870 census. What became of them is not known, though if they lived they did not stay in Caldwell County, Missouri. They are not listed in Kingston cemetery records.

RICHARD D. SACKMAN.

Sixty Years a Resident of Caldwell County Died at His Home in This City, Last Monday.

Last Tuesday morning the citizens of Kingston learned with sorrow that one of their neighbors and most esteemed friends had passed away, in the person of Richard D. Sackman. About three weeks ago he was stricken down with neuralgia, from which he was a patient and great sufferer until he was relieved by a summons from his Heavenly Father to come up higher.

Richard D. Sackman was born in Caldwell county, one-half mile west of Mirabile, on the 12th day of August, 1841, and had he lived until next August would have been sixty years of age. With the exception of a few months, all of these sixty years have been spent within the borders of Caldwell county, and a quarter part of the time within the city limits of Kingston.

He was ever loyal to his country and his flag. During the civil war he enlisted in Co. B, and served under Capt. Fortune in the 4th Enrolled Missouri Militia. He was a brave soldier and always ready to obey the commands of his officers let the danger be ever so great.

May 7, 1865, he was united in marriage to Miss Kate Dunn, her death separated them a few years later. On the 9th day of June, 1887, he lead to the altar Miss Puss Buford for nearly 14 years they have walked hand in hand and it has proved a most happy union. No shadow has ever crossed the threshold. The approving smiles of a loving husband has ever been present to comfort and make glad the one who to-day is bowed down in grief. His home was ever blessed with a more loving companion, or devoted husband.

As a citizen and neighbor this community has sustained a great loss. He was ever ready to lend a helping hand to the needy and afflicted. Generous and kind in all his ways. No one ever appealed to him for aid or comfort but received it most bountifully. Ever ready, ever willing to bear his full share of responsibility in every good work, or public enterprise which had to do with this city and community in which he has spent all his life. Mr. Sackman was a charter member of the Ben Loan Post, No. 33 G. A. R. which was instituted Sept. 26, 1882. And in all the intervening years he has scarcely missed a meeting and his council has always been respected and honored within the lodge room. He has filled every position with fidelity and his death is a great loss to the post.

In the city council, the school board and as a township official the deceased has often held positions. And be it said to his credit he was a faithful public servant. He never did a dishonorable official act.

Jan. 26, 1896, he joined the Presbyterian church of this city, and has been one of the most faithful and devoted members. Ever present at the Sabbath School, church services and business meetings. Next to the home, his loss will be more deeply felt, perhaps, by the church than in any other sphere. There is a great comfort in the blessed thought, that our loss is his eternal gain. That as he severs the ties of the church below he joins the church triumphant above.

The funeral services were held in the Presbyterian church to-day. Rev. G. H. Williamson, of Hamilton preaching the sermon. The church was crowded with relatives and friends throughout the county. At the cemetery Ben Loan Post laid the remains to rest with their impressive burial service.

(Clipped out of Feb. 14 1901 issue of Hamilton Advocate newspaper by local chapter, DAR)

Kate (Dunn) Sackman was an older half-sister of Mary Lydia (Dunn) White. She was daughter of Judge Lemuel Dunn, Jr., and his first wife, Sarah McCoy. Kate (Almira Catherine Dunn) born 07 Feb 1844 in Ray Co. MO. died 01 Aug 1886 in Kingston. She and Mr. Sackman were married on 07 May 1865. The couple had only one child, Sarah J. "Sallie" Sackman (27 Mar 1866-14 Nov 1872) who died when only six years old. Richard Sackman's parents were of German descent. He was born in PA to Jonathan and Barbara (Shanbarger) Sackman. The father was former Caldwell Co. MO sheriff.

The reason for including this information on Richard Sackman's relatives is for clues to where in California Kate's (and my Grandma, Mary Lydia's) brothers migrated to in California. We know that several groups of neighbors from Caldwell County undertook the difficult journey in covered wagons. It seems to me that they must have gone to Chico, Butte Co., CA. (See map included.)

daughter, Fannie, and her husband, Ray Wonsetler, frequently visiting his sister-in-law, Byrda Burdick, her son, Harry, and granddaughter, Mary Ann, and passed away April 18, 1953, at the age of 86 years.

After learning of her terminal illness, Mrs. Poor sold her farm to Harry and Mildred Hays who are still the owners. The Sackman 80 acres was owned by Fred Yoakum and his son, Charles, until it was purchased in 1971 by Robert Shaffer, who with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Shaffer, still live there and have made numerous improvements.

The descendants of Charles E. and Tavia Sackman are as follows: Vennie, who married Fred Yoakum, and had three children: Ione (born July 29, 1912), who married Grafton Kelly, and died in 1964; another daughter, who died in infancy; and a son, Charles F. (born November 15, 1917) who has a daughter, Joyce Ann. He and his wife, Mary, make their home in Independence, Mo.

Their second daughter, Lova, married Roscoe Poor, and their two daughters were Donna Mae (born December 14, 1914), who married J.D. Stephens and had five children: Warren Douglas, Beverly June, Sharon Yvonne, Philip Wendell, and Alan Keith; and Virginia Lee (born March 11, 1918), who married Lynn Gray and had two children: Robert Lynn and Anne Leslie. These two daughters of Roscoe and Lova Poor were the fourth and last generation of the George Sackman family to live on the old homeplace.

The third and youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sackman to survive them was Fannie Mae. She was married to Ray Wonsetler February 6, 1918, and had two sons: William S. (born October 27, 1921), who married Ruby Stephens and had two sons, John Raymond and Richard. The second son of Fannie and Ray Wonsetler, Marion Dean, lived only four days. (See Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wonsetler.) Fannie Mae died Oct. 8, 1983.

DANIEL SACKMAN FAMILY

Submitted by Virginia Gray

Earliest information about the Sackman family of Caldwell County began with Johan Hendrich Sackman who came to the States from Hamburg, Germany, in September, 1752, on the "Queen of Denmark" and landed in Philadelphia, Penn. Earliest records list only two sons: Daniel and Henry.

Daniel Sackman was born in Pennsylvania in 1788. He married Elizabeth Bertsfield, also of Pennsylvania. They were the parents of 10 children and made their home in Mansfield, Ohio, where they lived until four years after their youngest child, George Francis, was born.

In 1839, Daniel and Elizabeth Sackman, with their 10 children — Jonathan, Henry, Barbary Harriet, Rebecca, Anna Mary, Elizabeth, William Bertsfield, Daniel, Isaac, and George F. — accompanied by Daniel's brother, Henry, came to Missouri and located on a farm near Mirabile. Mr. Sackman was a blacksmith and maintained a shop in Mirabile. His oldest son, Jonathan, took charge of the farming. Daniel's brother, Henry, returned to Ohio the following year.

Daniel and Elizabeth Sackman spent the remainder of their lives in the Mirabile Community, until the close of the Civil War. They both passed away the year of 1865; Mrs. Sackman in January at the age of 73, and Mr. Sackman in April at the age of 77 years. Several of their descendants still reside in Caldwell County.

DANIEL JACOB SACKMAN

Submitted by Pat Vosgien

Daniel Jacob Sackman was born to Daniel and Elizabeth (Bertsfield) Sackman. Daniel Sr. and Elizabeth had 10 children with Daniel Jr. being the eighth. Daniel Sr. was born in 1788 at Elizabethtown (now Hagerstown) Washington County, Md. Daniel Sr. was a blacksmith.

Daniel Jr. traveled by covered wagon from Mansfield, Ohio, to Caldwell County, Mo., in 1839 after the Mormon Exodus from that area and settled in Mirabile Township, Mo.

Within 10 years of their arrival, the then 19-year-old Daniel Jr. and his brother, William B., took a covered wagon from Missouri to California to make their fortunes in the gold fields of California. It was after his failure in California that Daniel came to the Puget Sound in Washington.

Daniel, then 22, arrived at Alki Point in 1852 with $2.50 in his pocket. He became associated with Captain Daniel K. Howard and William Renton who were erecting a sawmill at Alki Point. They later moved their mill to Port Orchard and Daniel helped build the mill and supplied much of the timber for operation. He took up various sections of timber throughout central Kitsap County and settled on the shores of Dyes' Inlet in an area now known as Fairview.

Most of the men arriving on the shores of Puget Sound at this time were young and without mates. Most formed alliances with young Indian women and started families. Daniel chose a Duwamish Indian Princess known as Maria and they had at least six children: Emma, Joseph Wright, Isaac Steven, David Henry, and Frank, who died before age seven.

It didn't take long for Daniel to become a successful businessman and at one time he was the largest taxpayer in Kitsap County, Wash. He developed both a logging and milling company and as other men began settling on the shores of Dyes' Inlet and raising families, Daniel decided, in 1865, that it was imperative for his children to receive a quality education. In 1864, Daniel had made out a will and in that will he not only acknowledged that Maria was the mother of all of his children but also stated that they were indeed half-breeds and that upon his death that the executors of his estate would place his children in the care of Father Cherouse, who at the present, was a teacher at the Tulalip Reservation, or at some such institution where they would receive a good education. Daniel hired a woman to teach at his home, creating the first educational unit in what is now the Bremerton, Silverdale and Port Orchard areas.

In 1867, Daniel was instrumental in having a school unit. Later Daniel converted his three-room house into a school, located just below the present Tracyton Cemetery.

Indians and newcomers came to work for Daniel. The Indians of the area became financially productive as they worked both in the logging operations and the mill.

Maria died between 1866-1868. It is believed by some of the descendants of Daniel and Maria that Maria was a relation of one of the greatest chiefs and is the namesake of Seattle, Wash. Chief Sealth was Duwamish and Suquamish but he favored his mother's people, the Duwamish tribe. It is very difficult to find out a lot of information in regards to Maria, due to the fact that in those days the Indians were not put on the Census. If they had alliances with white men and they had children, the white man would show as would the half-breed children, but not the Indian woman. We do know of her existence through Daniel's will in which he acknowledges her and through interviews with her sons through the years. It has been stated that Maria died when Isaac was seven years old, that she was full-blooded Duwamish, and that she knew Chief Sealth and visited with him often.

Approximately 10 years after Maria's death, Daniel remarried to Elizabeth W. Phillips at Port Blakely. Mrs. Phillips was believed to have been the stepdaughter of William Renton.

Daniel had long suffered from asthma. It is said that he would rock himself to sleep each night in an upright position. Daniel died in Port Blakely, on the 30th of May 1889, and was buried at Lakeview Cemetery in Seattle near his good friend, Captain William Renton.

There is not too much good that can be said about Elizabeth, especially after Daniel's death, and the way she made her stepsons pay $2 an acre for property which she had legal title to. They paid because the property earned their livelihood. As soon as the money was paid, it's been said that she broke open the family safe, took all the money, hired a launch and went to Victoria.

At the time of his death, Daniel owned a vast amount of logging and a launch, and at one time owned the Port Blakely Hotel. His granddaughters have said that at one time he was logging half the county and owned most of it. The value of Daniel's estate was around $60,000.

The three Sackman boys, of Daniel and Maria, started logging at a very young age and continued until World War I.

The name of the community has changed often. The Indians called it Chelawwai from Tracyton to Fairview. The general area was known as Sackman until 1884 when the first post office was established and then called Dyes'. Two months later the name changed back to Sackman. In May 1890, the name Sackman was changed to Tracyton honoring Benjamin F. Tracy, then Secretary of the Navy.

Emma Sackman, the first-born child of Daniel and Maria, was married at a very early age. It's figured to be when she was about 15 1/2. She gave birth to a little girl named Nellie and died shortly after.

Joseph Wright, eldest son of Daniel and Maria, was born Feb. 12, 1858, at Tracyton, Wash. By the time Joseph was 15 he was a full-fledged logger and boss of the camp at Chico. The Sackman brothers logged most of the virgin timber surrounding Tracyton. Joseph was also known as a millman and a farmer. Joseph's first wife was Mary Ann Clark, born 1863 on the Skykomish Indian Reservation. Joseph had a double wedding with his brother, Isaac. Mary Ann died giving birth to their fifth child, Agnes.

Later Joseph remarried Lulu Beatrice McPhee born Aug. 18, 1880. Lulu was the great-great-granddaughter of Chief Sealth. Joseph and Lulu had seven children. Joseph died 16 October 1944.

Isaac Steven, second son of Daniel and Maria, was born Feb. 1, 1860. Isaac was born at the foot of Tracy Street and died very near the same location. Isaac was named after Daniel's younger brother and the first territorial governor of Washington, Isaac I. Stevens.

Everyone knew him as "Uncle Ike" and he lived four months and one day past his 100th birthday. In the latter part of his life his birthdays were celebrated by a lot of the townspeople getting together. Ike was known for his sense of humor. He was rarely seen without his meerschaum pipe, a memento of a Seattle shopping trip. When he'd go to Seattle, he'd hire Indians and then lay on a mat in the canoe for the crossing which would take between six or seven hours, depending on the weather.

Isaac was married briefly to Kate Woodward. Their marriage was a stormy one and Isaac divorced Kate in 1894. There were no children.

One of the favorite stories told of Ike was when he and Kate were returning from a party and were crossing the creek and the tide was in. Kate was dressed in long skirts, so Ike took his shoes off and started to carry her. In midstream they got into an argument and Ike just dropped her.

Isaac then married Frances Campbell (who was also a half-breed) born Oct. 25, 1868. They had five children: an infant, b. Feb. 11, 1898, d. Feb. 23, 1898; Daniel Jacob, b. March 12, 1899, d. April 5, 1977 - Daniel was in the service; Robert Campbell, b. May 12, 1900, d. March 26, 1975 - never married; Jesse Edith, b. Sept. 19, 1901, d. Dec. 12, 1963; and Myrtle, b. March 15, 1904, d. Jan. 9, 1966.

Special timber orders were Ike's specialty. In the early 1900's, Ike helped load the old sailing ship Samoa with piling for foundations at Pearl Harbor.

In his later years, Isaac ran a trap line for mink, raccoon and muskrat.

There has been only good spoken of Frances. She was loved by many as was Isaac. Frances was an avid baseball lover. She died Nov. 30, 1946. Isaac died June 2, 1960.

David Henry, the third son of Daniel and Maria, was born Dec. 15, 1861, in Chico. He spent his early years side by side with his brothers and father logging. David married Margaret Campbell (also a half-breed and sister to Frances, Isaac's wife), born Sept. 11, 1869. They were married 1886, and they had eight children. David was nominated in 1898 by the Republicans of Kitsap County for the position of Sheriff and elected by a decisive majority. At that time he was a resident of Tracyton and logging. So well did he fulfill his duties of that office that in 1900 he was renominated unanimously and reelected by a larger majority than before. David was the most popular of the county officials, according to the majorities received at the last election. He received more votes than any other candidate on the ticket.

David's brother, Isaac, years later told of how David used to make his rounds as County Sheriff on foot. He'd walk to Seabeck or Port Gamble and saved the county a lot of money.

David and Isaac were also the ones who donated the land for what is now known as the Tracyton Cemetery and resting place of Isaac, Frances and their children, Joseph and family, and David and family. David died Sept. 15, 1919, of a heart attack.

It can be said that the Sackman boys were always proud of their Indian heritage and were very active in the goings on of the Duwamish tribe as are their descendants.

GEORGE F. SACKMAN

Submitted by Virginia Gray

George Francis Sackman, the youngest of 10 children of Daniel and Elizabeth Sackman, was born in Mansfield, Ohio, November 18, 1835, and came to Caldwell County, Mo., with his parents in 1839, at the age of four years. He grew to manhood in the Mirabile Community.

On April 10, 1855, George F. Sackman was married to Nancy Jane Myers, also of the Mirabile Community, the daughter of John C. and Leah Brinnel Myers, who had also come "west" from Pennsylvania and Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Sackman were the parents of six children: Elizabeth, who married Will Henderson; Alice (dec.); Eugene (dec.); Hattie (dec.); Charles Elsworth; and James Edward (dec.). Two children died in infancy, and two were victims of typhoid fever.

With the onset of the Civil War, George Sackman enlisted in the Caldwell County Home Guards, a Union group led by Capt. Johnson in June 18, 1861, and engaged in the battle at Blue Mills Landing on the Missouri River. The following year, Mrs. Sackman's father, John C. Myers, was shot and killed because he was a southern sympathizer. Mrs. Sackman had the misfortune of witnessing her father's tragic death.

About 1879, the George Sackman family moved from their farm, which was 120 acres located in the SW-1/4 of Section 33, one mile west of Mirabile, to their new farm in Lincoln Township. This farm (as shown by the 1897 atlas) contained 180 acres lying on three-fourths mile of the east side of Section 17, another 60 acres along the south side of the SE-1/4 of Section 17,

Local Men Attend Flag Raising

Pfc. Dale T. Allee, Pfc. Floyd Dunn, Jr., Pfc. Ray Barnes and Sgt. Ernest Crowley of Polo, members of the same regiment in the First Army in Germany, attended the flag-raising ceremony on April 6th, when the Stars and Stripes were raised over the fortress of Ehrenbreitstein, across the Rhine River from Coblenz, Germany, and found it a stirring occasion.

Ehrenbreitstein was the only place east of the Rhine where the United States flag was flown in World War I, and the same flag 14 x 20 feet, was sent there from Washington, D. C., for the ceremony which took place exactly 28 years after the United States entered World War I in 1917.

BUTTE COUNTY

Butte County, California, is located in the Sacramento River Valley with its eastern flank extending into the Cascade and Sierra Nevada Ranges. Gold was discovered in the Feather River at Bidwell Bar in 1848 by John Bidwell. The county was organized in 1850 with Hamilton as the county seat. The county was made smaller, Plumas County being formed on the east. Oroville is now county seat.

BUTTE COUNTY

Butte County, California, is located in the northwestern part of the State. It is bounded on the north by the Sacramento River, on the east by the Feather River, on the south by the San Joaquin Hills, and on the west by the Eel River. The county is one of the most fertile in the State, and is famous for its fruit and grain. It is also a great lumbering country, and has many beautiful lakes and mountains.

McCloud was established in the late 1800s, in the shadow of Mt. Shasta. It survived quite well on the timber industry until the late 1970s when the industry declined. Since then the town has been struggling with sawmill closures and a dwindling population. Photo by Scott Nystrom. Courtesy, Record Searchlight

JUDGE LEMUEL DUNN.

KINGSTON.

LEMUEL DUNN, a descendant of an old Virginia family, was born in Mercer county, Kentucky, January 2, 1820. His father, Lemuel Dunn, was a native of the western part of Virginia, a fuller and farmer by occupation. His mother's maiden name was Sarah Campbell.

About the year 1806 they emigrated to Kentucky, where the subject of this memoir—the fifth of seven children—was born. He received his early education in the private schools of the neighborhood, completing the same at Cane Run Academy, in Mercer county, which institution he attended about three years.

November 14, 1839, he married Miss Sarah McCoy, a daughter of Rev. Rice McCoy, a Baptist minister and farmer, of Washington county, Indiana, where he temporarily resided.

In the spring of 1841 he emigrated to Ray county, Missouri, where he remained about one year. He then moved to Grundy county, where he resided over three years. Thence he moved to Caldwell county, in the spring of 1846. On first settling in Missouri, he engaged in farming. On moving to Grundy county, in consequence of failing health, which obliged him to give up farming, he engaged in the study of medicine. On his removal to Caldwell county, in 1846, he engaged in the practice of medicine, and continued until 1852, located during that period in Kingston, the county seat.

In 1850 he was elected, on the Whig ticket, representative in the State Legislature from Caldwell county, serving during the memorable session in which Colonel Benton was defeated for United States Senator by H. S. Geyer, the Whig candidate. In this move Dr. Dunn took an earnest and active part. During the same session, the State endorsed the bonds of the Hannibal & St. Joseph, and of the Pacific Railroad Companies, to the amount of one and a half million dollars each. At the same session an act was passed apportioning to the several counties the swamp and overflowed lands of the State. In this, as in the first mentioned move, Dr. Dunn also was prominently active. The first petition to the Congress of the United States, for a grant of the public lands to aid in the construction of the Hannibal & St. Joseph Railroad, was drafted by the Hon. George Smith, then a resident of Caldwell county, and Mr. Dunn. They circulated petitions, called public meetings in Caldwell and other counties along the line of the road, and inaugurated the movement that afterwards resulted in the act of Congress granting alternate sections of land along the line of the road, to aid in the construction, which with the aid granted by the State of Missouri, secured the completion of the road. At that time (1847), there was not a railroad west of the Mississippi river, and the people felt the necessity of having a railroad to convey their surplus products to market; and the active interest that Mr. Dunn took in this matter pointed to him as a proper person to assist in carrying out the wishes of the people in this matter, and as a consequence he was elected to the Legislature in 1850, mainly upon this issue.

In 1852 he was elected Clerk of the County Court of Caldwell county, which office he held until 1860. In 1854 he was elected Clerk of the Circuit Court, holding both offices. With an interval of two years, he held the circuit clerkship till 1866.

From 1862 to 1864 he filled with ability the office of Probate Judge. During the war, he was elected one of the Curators of the State University, serving part of a term, when he resigned.

While serving as clerk of the court he improved his leisure time in the study of law, and so assiduously did he prosecute his studies that in 1866 he was admitted to the practice of law by Judge Walter King, of the Circuit Court, and has been successfully engaged in the same ever since.

He became a Master Mason about 1857, in Mirable, Caldwell county. He is at present an active member and Past Master of Kingston Lodge, No. 118, A. F. & A. M.

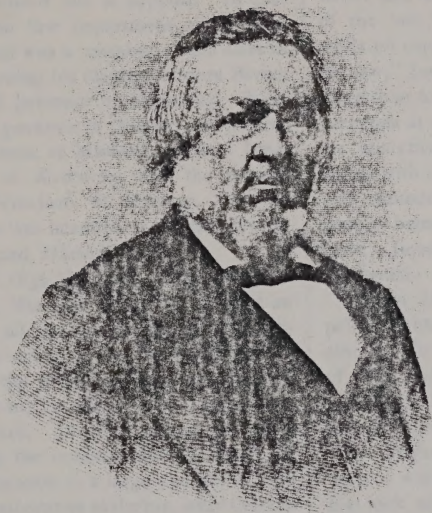

In politics he was always a Whig until the disbanding of that party, when he united with the Republicans, with whom he has since acted.

His parents were Presbyterians, and he was raised in the teachings of that Church but never united with it. About the year 1859 he united with the Christian Church, of which he is still a member.

His first wife died in 1858, leaving eight children—four boys and four girls; of these, two sons and four daughters are now living. January 31, 1860, he married Miss Emma Amelia Dodge, daughter of Rev. Dwight Dodge, of Caldwell county, and a minister of the Christian Church. The issue of this marriage is two sons and one daughter.

Judge Dunn is of commanding presence, six feet in height, and weighs two hundred pounds. His manners are pleasing and his professional and private character above reproach.

HON. GEORGE W. DUNN.

RICHMOND.

GEORGE WASHINGTON DUNN, the present judge of the 5th Judicial Circuit of Missouri, was born near Harrodsburg, Mercer county, Kentucky, October 15, 1815. His father, Major Lemuel Dunn, a pioneer farmer of Kentucky, was the son of Michael Dunn, of Irish parentage, but a native of Virginia, and a noble defender of his country in the war for the freedom of the American Colonies. The mother of the subject of this sketch, whose maiden name was Sarah Read Campbell, was also a native Virginian and of Irish descent. Her father, John Campbell, was also a soldier in the Revolutionary war.

Major Dunn died in 1828, leaving his family in limited circumstances, on a farm, when George was only thirteen years old. Young as he was, he worked diligently during summer, and attended school through the winter. He finished what schooling the family's finances would permit at Cane Run Academy, Mercer county, excelling in mathematics. Although unable to take the full course at one of the regular colleges, his unquenchable thirst for knowledge led him to eschew the usual pastimes of youth, and to devote every spare hour to study, so his ardor made up for what his poverty disallowed. His mental tastes were beyond the ordinary of young men, leading him into the higher classics, law, and also into the flowery fields of poetry.

At nineteen he engaged as clerk in a dry goods store in Nicholasville, Jessamine county, Kentucky; but he carried with him and used his books. At twenty he began the regular study of law and continued it industriously three years, only interrupted by regular intervals of school teaching, which he was compelled to follow for a support. In that time he attended the law department of Transylvania University, and was a member of the class of 1836 and 1837. Among his classmates were Beriah McGoffin, afterward governor of Kentucky; Richard Yates, afterward governor of Illinois; the present Hon. Otho R. Singleton, of Mississippi; Rev. Jonathan E. Spillman, of Kentucky, and the present Hon. Samuel H. Woodson, of Missouri. At the close of the term he was licensed to practice law by Judges Robertson and Marshall.

In the spring of 1839 Mr. Dunn settled in Richmond, Ray county, Missouri, and there opening an office, practiced in all the counties of the 5th Judicial Circuit. In the spring of 1841 he was appointed circuit attorney of the circuit to fill a vacancy, and in 1844 was elected to that office without opposition, and filled it until 1848. During those seven years, besides prosecuting the criminals in the circuit, he gave satisfactory attention to a large practice in civil cases. As his contemporaries at the bar, were Colonel A. W. Doniphan, Hon. David R. Atchison, Hon. William T. Wood, Governor Peter H. Burnett, Hon. James H. Birch, Governor Williard P. Hall, Hon. Robert D. Ray, General B. F. Stringfellow, and others of the most distinguished lawyers of the state. In 1848 Mr. Dunn was appointed judge of the 5th Judicial Circuit as successor of Hon. Austin A. King, who was that year elected governor of the state. He was elected to the same position in 1851 and again in 1857.

In 1861 Judge Dunn retired from office, declining to take the test oath required of officers by the state convention of that year, and resumed the practice of law. In 1863 he was again elected judge of his old circuit by a large majority, and remained on the bench until 1865, when he with others, was thrown out of office by the "vacating ordinance" of the state convention. He again returned to the practice of his profession and followed it until 1874, when he was elected without opposition to his old position as judge of the 5th Judicial Circuit, which he now holds.

Whether as lawyer or judge, few jurists of this country hold higher rank than does Judge Dunn.

The prime of his life has been spent at the bar and on the bench, his contests have been with the legal giants of the West; his success is attested by his long continuance in office, in the affection of his fellow-attorneys, and in the universal confidence reposed in him by the people of his district. A late writer said of him: "He only sought the honors of the law;" the compliment is only half true; while no true lawyer is insensible to the "honors of the law," Judge Dunn has striven to honor the law more than to seek its honors. As a judge, he comprehends at once the law and facts of the case; and his analytical powers enable him to develop the points with such clearness and force, that his decisions commend themselves alike to the bar and to the people, being always fortified by the law and the facts. Juries are seldom called for when he is on the bench.

Judge Dunn has always been a Democrat in politics; but never a candidate for any political office. He was a member of the state convention of 1861, called to consider the Federal relations of Missouri. In that body he voted against secession and all radical measures. He has ever exhibited a deep interest in the cause of Education, and has been a warm friend of all educational institutions. He took an active part in establishing Richmond College, which has become a flourishing institution. When a young lawyer he became a member of Richmond Lodge, No. 57, A. F. & A. M., and at different times has held various important offices in that body. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

On the 19th of May, 1841, at Nicholasville, Kentucky, George W. Dunn was married to Miss Susan Martha Henderson, daughter of Bennet Henderson and grand-daughter of Colonel Joseph Crockett, an officer in the Revolutionary war. They have had five children, only one of whom, John Henderson Dunn, is now living.

Judge Dunn has always evinced a taste for literature, which he has cultivated to a high degree. He has divided his affections between the goddess of justice and the fair nymph of poesy, and without slighting either, shows that he has worshipped both. He has given to the public many poetical effusions, gems of rare beauty and acknowledged merit. He is the only poet who has found in the prosy proceedings of a court of justice themes for poetical song. "The Temple of Justice," written by him a few years ago and dedicated to the bench and bar, has been widely published and admired. We close his sketch with one of his gems, showing that the robe of ermine fits him no more gracefully than does the chaplet of poesy.

THE ERMINE AND THE HARP.

The Ermine's hue of spotless white
Invokes the wearer's earnest ken,
As law and equity unite
To shield and bless the sons of men ;
For heaven-born Truth by right prevails
And baffles every crafty scheme,
When Justice holds the impartial scales
And Mercy's tears bedew the beam.

Fraud writhes beneath the Jurist's feet,
And Falsehood from his presence flies,
Twin sisters these that dare not meet
The piercing glances of his eyes ;
And fetters that the strong apply
To feeble limbs are snapped in twain,
And wrong's foul emblems scattered lie
Around the bondman's broken chain.

O bring my Harp ! Its chords shall send
Exultant notes to greet all ears,
Notes whose harmonies will blend
With music sounding from the spheres ;
For right has triumphed over wrong,
And Justice holds unbroken sway ;
The victory demands a song,
A sweet song that will live for aye.

as the proper person to assist in carrying out the wishes of the people in this matter, and as a consequence he was elected to the Legislature in 1850, mainly upon this issue.

At that time (1847), there was not a railroad west of the Mississippi river, and the people felt the necessity of having a railroad to convey their surplus products to market; and the active interest that Mr. Dunn took in this matter pointed to him as a proper person to assist in carrying out the wishes of the people in this matter, and as a consequence he was elected to the Legislature in 1850, mainly upon this issue.

In 1852 he was elected Clerk of the County Court of Caldwell county, which office he held until 1860. In 1854 he was elected Clerk of the Circuit Court, holding both offices. With an interval of two years, he held the circuit clerkship till 1866.

From 1862 to 1864 he filled with ability the office of Probate Judge. During the war, he was elected one of the Curators of the State University, serving part of a term, when he resigned.

While serving as clerk of the court he improved his leisure time in the study of law, and so assiduously did he prosecute his studies that in 1866 he was admitted to the practice of law by Judge Walter King, of the Circuit Court, and has been successfully engaged in the same ever since.

He became a Master Mason about 1857, in Mirable, Caldwell county. He is at present an active member and Past Master of Kingston Lodge, No. 118, A. F. & A. M.

In politics he was always a Whig until the disbanding of that party, when he united with the Republicans, with whom he has since acted.

His parents were Presbyterians, and he was raised in the teachings of that Church but never united with it. About the year 1859 he united with the Christian Church, of which he is still a member.

His first wife died in 1858, leaving eight children—four boys and four girls; of these, two sons and four daughters are now living. January 31, 1860, he married Miss Emma Amelia Dodge, daughter of Rev. Dwight Dodge, of Caldwell county, and a minister of the Christian Church. The issue of this marriage is two sons and one daughter.

Judge Dunn is of commanding presence, six feet in height, and weighs two hundred pounds. His manners are pleasing and his professional and private character above reproach.

John Rowland "squatted" on a piece of land in section 16 in 1838, and lived there for some time. Odell lived in a cabin on the north bank of Shoal creek, about a mile northeast of Kingston, in an early day.

ORGANIZATION.

Formerly Kingston township formed a portion of Blythe township, which was organized long before the Civil War, and at one time took in what are now Grant, Kingston and Hamilton townships, and some other territory. This township was named for Riley Blythe, an old pioneer who hunted and trapped along Shoal creek and its tributaries more than fifty years ago, and who is now living, at an advanced age, near Camden, Ray county. November 4, 1867, Blythe was broken up and Kingston and Hamilton townships organized out of its territory — a line running east and west between sections 12 and 13 to Shoal creek, in township 56, range 28, then up Shoal creek to range 29, being the dividing line between Kingston and Hamilton. In 1870 the boundaries were reduced to their present lines. Since the recent township organization the officers have been as follows: —

1881. — Trustee, Elmore H. Johnson; collector, Eli Gapen; clerk, John Colvin; justices of the peace, Augustus Mack, Thomas J. Reid; constable, L. B. Clevenger.

1883. — Trustee, E. M. Prickitt; collector, Eli Gapen; clerk, John Colvin; justices of the peace, John Wright, John Theilman; constable, C. J. Johnson.

1885. — Trustee, E. M. Prickitt; collector, Horace Johnston; clerk, M. C. Canon; justices of the peace, James McMillan, John Theilman; constable, John T. Brown.

THE TOWN OF KINGSTON.

What is now the east half of the town of Kingston, including the public square, was entered by Abraham Coutts, September 4, 1835. The west half was entered by Roswell Stevens, June 8, 1837. Mr. Coutts had a cabin on the east side of his land, nearly half a mile east of the present court-house, and this building was torn down about 1840. In 1841 Isaac Creason, a son of Willis Creason, who lived down on Crooked river, built a cabin on where is now the northeast corner of the square, cleared a "patch" of ground, and resided here a year or two, when he moved back to Ray county.

After the Mormons left the county Far West continued to be the county seat until the spring of 1843. Meantime the center of population of the county had been removed to somewhat near the center of the county itself. It became very inconvenient for the large number of people then living on lower Shoal creek to go to the county seat and many complaints arose. At the August election, 1842, John Skidmore was chosen the Representative from this county, and it was demanded of him that he procure a removal of the county seat. So December 16, 1842, soon after the assembling of the Legislature, a bill was passed appointing commissioners to relocate the capital of the county of Caldwell. The commissioners appointed under the bill were George W. Dunn, of Ray; Littleberry Sublette, of Clay; Robert D. Ray, of Carroll; John Austin, of Livingston, and Milford Donaho, of Daviess.

It is said that only Dunn, Ray and Donaho acted as commissioners, and that after looking the county over they at first selected the site on a tract of land south of Log creek, two miles southwest of where Kingston now is, but the owner of the land, W. B. Bryan, refused to donate over forty acres to the county, and so the commissioners went elsewhere, and at last selected the site where it now is. The owners of the land, James Ramsey and William Hill, cheerfully donated between them 160 acres of land to the county for county seat purposes.

In the spring of 1843 the town was regularly surveyed and laid off into lots and blocks, and Charles J. Hughes, then a young lawyer of Far West, was appointed county seat commissioner to conduct the sale of lots, etc. The site of the town was chiefly a brush patch, although Creason's improvement still remained.

The commissioners, upon request of a large number of citizens, named the town Kingston, in honor of Judge Austin A. King, of Richmond. Judge King had been circuit judge of this circuit, and was well and most favorably known. In 1848 he was elected Governor of the State on the Democratic ticket over Hon. James S. Rollins, the Whig candidate, and served four years. When the war came on he was a decided Union man, and was taken prisoner by Gen. Price's forces and held for some days. In 1862 he was elected to Congress from this district, and served one term. Gov. King was a native of Tennessee.

The first house in Kingston is still standing on the northeast corner of the square, a two-story building, part log and part frame, but has been enlarged since first erected. It was hauled from Far West, and was originally built by a Mormon. It was placed in its present position July 5, 1843, by Walter A. Doak, now residing in the northern part of Mirabile township. Mr. Doak was born in East Tennessee, near the famous "Kit Bullard's mill, on the Big Pigeon." He and his wife Elizabeth kept open house for some months after they settled in Kingston, entertaining travelers and others as best they could in their little domicile, which at first was but a small frame building. Mr. Doak was a shoemaker, and followed his vocation here for some time.

A man named Marsh, a Yankee, built the second house, a small shanty, on the southwest corner of the square, where Heiser's furniture store now is. This was about the last of July, 1843.

The first merchant in the place was a Mr. Baxter, who purchased Doak's house in August or September, 1843, and opened a store therein. Baxter enlarged the building and kept a hotel in it for a time. Not long after Baxter opened his store Free and Ned Sisson, merchants at Camden, sent up a stock of goods in charge of Joseph Hord (or Hoard), who bought Marsh's building and opened the second store. Perhaps Ardinger and Woodson were the next merchants.

✗ I don't know if this Mr. Doak was related to C. Granger Doak's brother-in-law Robert Doak in Indiana, except that they had the same father!

In the fall of 1843 the first court-house, the log building mentioned elsewhere, was built. The second was built in 1847 by Hawkins Green, and was the two-story brick burned in April, 1860.

The first attorney in Kingston was Charles J. Hughes, who came in 1843, and the second was Volney E. Bragg. The first practicing physician that located here was Dr. Evans, who came from Ohio in 1844, and now lives in Plattsburg.

July 4, 1843, a large crowd assembled on the town site of Kingston to celebrate the Fourth of July. There were no houses in the place except Creason's cabin, and so a large brush arbor was erected on the south side of the public square, and under this the exercises were held. There was a bountiful dinner, plenty of whisky, everybody was happy, but nobody very drunk, and the crowd enjoyed itself hugely.

Charles J. Hughes, then a young attorney of 22 or 23, was the orator of the day. Just forty-two years afterward, on July 4, 1885, on a similar occasion at Kingston, he again delivered the oration in commemoration of the anniversary; but on the last occasion not more than a dozen of the hundreds who heard him speak in 1843 were present, although the crowd was ten times as large.

Maj. T. W. Higgins had prepared a fine flag for the first celebration and this was raised by the mayor amid the shouts and cheers of the multitude.

At night there was a great dance under the arbor. The ground had been cleared off and covered with sawdust, making a very respectable "floor," and the lads and lassies, as well as some of the older folks, enjoyed themselves immensely—as well doubtless as their descendants and successors now do, on the same site, in Davis & Spivey's hall.

No post-office was established in Kingston until in 1845. John H. Ardinger was the first postmaster. Mails came in twice a week from Richmond and Plattsburg. Mr. Ardinger was a merchant in the place at the time.

Other pioneer merchants and business men in Kingston were Martin D. Hines, who built a two-story business house in 1844; Frank Haines and ——— Marshall. After a time George Johnson kept the hotel which had formerly been managed by Baxter.

The first church building was the Christian, built in 1859. Previous to this religious meetings were held in the court house. The first school house was built by the township of Blythe in 1846. It was a brick and stood south of the public square.

Massingale & Wilhoit's mill, on Shoal creek, a few hundred yards up the stream from the bridge, on the Hamilton road, was the first mill in the neighborhood of Kingston. It is fully mentioned elsewhere.

INCORPORATION.

Kingston was incorporated by act of the Legislature, November 21, 1857, as a town. The following is an extract from section 1 of the act of incorporation:—

The inhabitants of the tract or district of country known by the name of Kingston, in the county of Caldwell, situate and lying in the following boundary, to wit: The east half of the southwest quarter of section 22, in township 56, of range 28, shall be, and they are hereby created a body politic and corporate, by the name and style of the "Town of Kingston," etc.

In April, 1872, the foregoing section was amended and the boundary extended by the Legislature, so that the limits of the town should comprise "the east half of the southeast quarter of section 21, and the west half of the southwest quarter, and also a strip 59 rods wide off of the south side of the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 22; also, that part of the west half of the northwest quarter of section 27 which lies north of Log creek, all in township 56, range 28.

The present population of Kingston is about 600, although 750 is claimed. It has three general stores, one exclusive grocery and provision store, one hardware store, three drug stores, two livery stables, one furniture store, two hotels, two newspapers—the Caldwell County Sentinel and Kingston Times; one banking house, the Caldwell County Bank, capital $50,000, John D. Cox, proprietor; two or three millinery establishments, mechanics' shops, a steam flour and grist mill, ten or a dozen attorneys, half a dozen physicians, etc. There is a fine two-story brick public school building, and a comfortable frame school-house for the colored children of the district. There are three church buildings—Christian, Presbyterian, and Congregationalist. The town is connected with Hamilton by telephone.

Free from the bustle and busy turmoil of large railroad towns, Kingston is without many of their advantages; but it is also without many of their disadvantages, without their vices and their crimes, their corruption and prevailing sentiment of distrust and thought of evil. The people of Kingston are generous, hospitable, able, socially disposed, and confiding. The stranger, if his walk is at all circumspect, is not looked upon with suspicion, but is trusted and made welcome. The true nobility and gentility of character of the men and women of this town can not be too highly commented upon. The slanderer and the backbiter do not ply their calling here. People choose to hear and to talk of the good traits of their neighbors rather than of their weaknesses.

The young people are pure in character and correct in true deportment, but withal are full of merriment and jollity, fond of each other's society and of harmless recreation and amusement. The young ladies are alike well qualified to serve in the kitchen, to grace the parlor, and to shine in the ball room and at the reception, and their many charms of person and manner attract to them hosts of admirers.

God bless and prosper the people of Kingston!

It did much not only to educate in science and art and in the accomplishments of cultivated society, the young ladies who attended it, but in elevating and strengthening the moral tone of the people, and in preparing them for the higher achievements in educational enterprises which have since that period so distinguished our county.

But for Bonne Femme and Columbia Colleges we probably never would have had the State University and Agricultural College, and but for Columbia Female Academy, Stephens and Christian Colleges would have been above the ambition and beyond the grasp of our people.

KINGSTON CEMETERY

Cataloging the tombstones in the Kingston Cemetery has been very interesting work. It has proved to be a very historical cemetery with about 184 (and possibly more) veterans buried here. On Decoration Day, the graves of the veterans are marked with flags and beginning this year (1986), the V. F. W. Post #4179, will be responsible for this task.

Kingston has one soldier of the "War of 1812" buried here: Isaac Reed Allee. A war soldier marker is placed at his grave site with no other dates. Through some research, it was found that his birth and death dates are: (1788-1872) and that he served in Capt. Stevens - Arwatt Co., 2nd Regiment, Ohio Militia.

Seven known Confederate Veterans are buried here: Wm. M. Butts, John Catron, Wm. F. Catron, H. C. Gist, Absalom Harpold, John H. Sackman and Rufus C. Sackman. There's also a marker for John Whitenack, a Confederate soldier who was killed and buried at Vicksburg. The graves of two brothers who fought on opposite sides in the Civil War can be found here -- Wm. Butts, Confederate and T. J. Butts, Union.

A number of colored people are buried here, including at least two former slaves, Ed Wise and George Baker. Mr. Baker being a Union soldier. Surnames of some of the others are: Bell, Brooks, Moree, McDonald, Martin, Smith and Simpson.

Since early records at Kingston have been destroyed by fire, it has been hard to determine the exact beginning of the cemetery. It was probably used as a burial ground for several years before any official papers were fixed. The earliest transaction found was dated Nov. 14, 1867, when John H. and Agnes Ardingier conveyed to John Wright, Isaac Merchant and Lemuel Dunn, Trustees, a tract of land in the town of Kingston to be used for the sole and only purpose of a graveyard or burial ground for the use of the inhabitants of the town of Kingston and vicinity. In 1887, a ing: William C., George W., Ida J., Grant W., Frank L. and Emma T. One daughter, Amanda, is deceased. George W. Royer, the second son, is a young man of excellent ability and fine business capacity, and besides is quite an inventive genius. He had patented a fence of his own invention which is something of much merit and in other articles he is displaying considerable thought and ingenuity. He has been a lifelong resident of this county and is well known.

(Dealer, in Groceries, Kingston, Mo')

Mr. Sackman's father, Jonathan Sackman, a native of Franklin county, Pa., left the place of his birth when young and removed to Richland county, O., where he made his home until about 25 years of age. During life his time and attention were occupied in agricultural pursuits, in which he was not unsuccessful. He was sheriff of Caldwell county for eight years, from 1861 to 1868, filling the office with honor and credit to the county. It was in 1840 that he located in Caldwell county, and here he continued to live until his death in 1874; two children survive him, Rufus and Richard D. His wife was formerly Miss Barbara Shanabarger, originally from Maryland, though she was reared and educated in Ohio. She is still living, a lady well preserved in years and highly respected. Richard D. Sackman, one of the oldest native born residents of the county now living within its limits, has made his home during his entire life in this immediate vicinity, and it is but the truth to say that no man in Caldwell county is better or more favorably known than he. His birth occurred July 12, 1841, consequently he is in his forty-fifth year. Brought up to a knowledge of farm life, he very naturally chose that occupation as his calling in life when it became necessary for him to select some permanent industry; but with keen business foresight, and realizing the advantages to be gained in conducting an exclusive grocery store, he embarked in his present business some four years ago. The experience which he has had since that time has only proved the wisdom of his judgment. Since his identification with Kingston as a business man he has been active and enterprising, and has done much in his line to increase and extend the trade and influence of the place. He is thoroughly honest and reliable in all his transactions and naturally draws to his house a large custom. Mr. Sackman was married in 1865 (May 7) to Miss Kate Dunn, the daughter of Dr. Dunn. She was born in Ray county, Mo. They have no children living, but one daughter, Sallie, died at the age of 7 years. During the war Mr. S. served for some time in the M. S. M.

Lemuel Dunn's first wife ^{and George Dodge notes,} was Sarah McCoy, dtr of Rev. Rice McCoy, a Baptist minister and farmer of Washington County, Indiana "where he temporarily resided".
Lemuel & Sarah ^{they} were married there 14 Nov. 1839. (He ~~would have~~ ^{was} ~~been~~ ^{not} quite 20 years old.) [insert ch 1st now at bottom]

Sarah died in 1858, leaving four boys and four girls. By 1878 two of the boys had died.

Lemuel was a Whig until the party disbanded and then became a Republican. His parents had been Presbyterians but he was not active in the church until 1859 when he joined the Christian Church. In 1960 he married Emma Addie Dodge, then 19, the daughter of Rev. Dwight Dodge, a founder of the Christian Church in Kingston, Mo, where he lived. They had ~~four~~ ^{three} children, Dwight (1864-1933?) m. 31 Dec 1890 Ada Bassett, had 2 children, "Chloe" and Floyd L. I should be defensive; but probably I would like Ben & Aunt May, I think. Uncle Ben "took after" his mother and was a man's clothing store in Kingston called "Ben's Toggery". ^{more} ~~Grandpa~~ ^{Grandpa} was very hard ^{on} ~~to~~ her, because she was ^{very} close to her mother, ^{than} ~~and~~ ^{at the average}. Grandpa was the dominant one in the family, and ^{Grandpa} ~~she~~ ^{always} ~~did~~ ^{he} ~~except~~ she thought he was hard of hearing — which I doubt! — and stated her opinion ~~about~~ ^{about} him or other secrets in a ~~very~~ ^{loud} whisper ^{so loud it rang} ~~that could be~~ ^{heard} about as well as ^{if she had been} talking. In all those years he never let on that he could hear ^{she} ~~she~~ ^{did not} ~~help~~ ^{farm} on the farm, though she did garden, can, and ~~and~~ ^{and} raise chickens. She sold butter and eggs in town for spending money. She drove into town riding in a black buggy, pulled by a brown horse named Daisy. ~~Daisy~~, the horse, and rode in a black buggy. She wore a slate ^{mother's} ~~simple~~ ^{modest} ~~clothing~~ ^{clothing} ~~made for her ^{made for her} ~~on a treadle sewing machine~~. A ^{problem} ~~problem~~ that ^{occasionally} ~~sometimes~~ occurred was snakes in the chicken ~~coops~~ ^{coops}. They curled up in the nests (which were on wooden shelves, divided like crates, and lined with hay or straw). The snakes were ~~pests~~ ^{which} did not hurt people but were ^{not} ~~unpleasant~~ if you ~~got~~ ^{happened to grab} one when you were getting eggs. Of course the people killed the snakes; but in a year so the problem ^{could} ~~could~~ recur. I don't remember a mouse ^{or rat} ~~problem~~, ~~but~~ ^{perhaps} the cats (who lived in the barn) kept that taken care of. The cats came around when Grandpa milked the cows. He squirted the milk ^{in a stream from the cow's teat directly} ~~into the cat's mouth~~. The cats loved that and I think Grandpa enjoyed it too. Grandpa was a quiet, gentle man and the fact that ~~Grandma~~ ^{Grandma} ~~always~~ ^{always} said she and Wesley had a bargain. She ran the house and he ran the barn and each kept out of the other's territory, which as I remember it was actually not true.)~~

Dear Mrs. Dann:

A lady I met told me you are a member of the Wythe Co. Hx Soc.
~~and that you can help me find out if I can help. It would be ever so grateful if~~ I am searching for an ancestor, Michael Dann, Summers Archivist of JVA says a Michael Dann was first here 8 Nov 1791 for contempt of Court.

Another (or the same) Michael was in Henry Co 1776-7 & owned property there in 1780. A Michael Vt. Served 1782 in Montgomery Co Militia.
and wonder if there is such a person
Is there any Michael Dann in your husband's family background, or if you have any ~~helpful~~ suggestions to ~~helping search?~~

My Michael was said to have served in the Revolution and to have been a "native Virginian of Irish descent" living in Western VA. ~~His son, Lemuel, was a Major in the 8th Virginia~~ ~~Regiment (about 1806?).~~ The only Red Soldier ^{Michael} listed by Eckhardt was of the 8th Virginia. Did any Wythe Co.
soldiers fight in the 8th? Or was that too far North?

My Michael had a son, "Major" Lemuel Dann ^{who} went to Kentucky ~~and~~ (about 1806?). He married Sarah ~~Campbell~~ Read Campbell, daughter of John Campbell "who was also a Revolutionary soldier" and who I am also searching for.

Would it be helpful to me to join your Society? The money is for your own travels, though I would appreciate it if you placed an inquiry in your publication if you do not have ~~any~~ information to help me.

Very truly
Yours
N. J. Z.

Dear Mrs. Zaniewski,

In regard to the letter you wrote to me concerning your ancestor, Michael Dunn, I'm afraid I will not be much help. I am not originally from this area. My husband has never been particularly interested in geneology. I called both his eldest sister and first cousin who reside in their hometown of Bland, Virginia. Neither of them could recall hearing of a Michael Dunn. However, his sister mentioned there was a Dunn family "early on" in Peterstown, West VA of no relation to them.

I talked to the president of our Wythe County Historical Society. She suggested that you get in touch with the newly formed Bland County Historical Society as that is the hometown of the Dunns. One member would be →

Below--Lemuel's brother, Judge George W. Dunn of Richmond. The Dunn brothers' idealistic nature is typified by one of George's poems praising the American judicial system.

THE ERMINE AND THE HARP.

The Ermine's hue of spotless white
Invokes the wearer's earnest ken,
As law and equity unite
To shield and bless the sons of men;
For heaven-born Truth by right prevails
And baffles every crafty scheme,
When Justice holds the impartial scales
And Mercy's tears bedew the beam.

Fraud writhes beneath the Jurist's feet,
And Falsehood from his presence dies,
Twin sisters these that dare not meet
The piercing glances of his eyes;
And fetters that the strong apply
To feeble limbs are snapped in twain,
And wrong's foul emblems scattered lie
Around the bondman's broken chain.

O bring my Harp! Its chords shall send
Exultant notes to greet all ears,
Notes whose harmonies will blend
With music sounding from the spheres;
For right has triumphed over wrong,
And Justice holds unbroken sway:
The victory demands a song,
A sweet song that will live for aye.

Enclosed inside are Sepia-colored duplicator copies of the photograph of great grandpa Dunn from which these images were copied. Unfortunately the old technology did not produce a copy which would last, so I tried to preserve what I could. Mama had kept the old photograph of her grandpa, who died 20 years before she was born, on the living-room wall where she could look at it, so the photo was fading even before. I gather that he was a nice-looking man for his day, with dark hair & eyes but not a dark complexion. (Grandma's eyes were so black the doctor had difficulty finding the pupil.)

His habits are and have been of any kind. His farm, of about 100 acres, is in the city of Huntsville, his residence being in the corporate limits. It is highly marked contrast with his habits. Mr. Ruthertford has done more to develop the interests of his town and county than any other man. In the accumulation of his property he always so used his means as to benefit as well as himself. To the work he has been a benefactor, giving to the community and bread. In person he is of medium height, but large of frame. He has a knit; his head and face are marked with wrinkles.

JUDGE LEMUEL DUNN.

KINGSTON.

LEMUEL DUNN, a descendant of an old Virginia family, was born in Mercer county, Kentucky, January 2, 1820. His father, Lemuel Dunn, was a native of the western part of Virginia, a fuller and farmer by occupation. His mother's maiden name was Sarah Campbell.

About the year 1806 they emigrated to Kentucky, where the subject of this memoir—the fifth of seven children—was born. He received his early education in the private schools of the neighborhood, completing the same at Cane Run Academy, in Mercer county, which institution he attended about three years.

November 14, 1839, he married Miss Sarah McCoy, a daughter of Rev. Rice McCoy, a Baptist minister and farmer, of Washington county, Indiana, where he temporarily resided.

In the spring of 1841 he emigrated to Ray county, Missouri, where he remained about one year. He then moved to Grundy county, where he resided over three years. Thence he moved to Caldwell county, in the spring of 1866. On first settling in Missouri, he engaged in farming. On moving to Grundy county, in consequence of failing health, which obliged him to give up farming, he engaged in the study of medicine. On his removal to Caldwell county, in 1846, he engaged in the practice of medicine, and continued until 1852, located during that period in Kingston, the county seat.

In 1850 he was elected, on the Whig ticket, representative in the State Legislature from Caldwell county, serving during the memorable session in which Colonel Benton was defeated for United States Senator by H. S. Geyer, the Whig candidate. In this move Dr. Dunn took an earnest and active part. During the same session, the State endorsed the bonds of the Hannibal & St. Joseph, and of the Pacific Railroad Companies, to the amount of one and a half million dollars each. At the same session an act was passed apportioning to the several counties the swamp and overflowed lands of the State. In this, as in the first mentioned move, Dr. Dunn also was prominently active. The first petition to the Congress of the United States, for a grant of the public lands to aid in the construction of the Hannibal & St. Joseph Railroad, was drafted by the Hon. George Smith, then a resident of Caldwell county, and Mr. Dunn. They circulated petitions, called public meetings in Caldwell and other counties along the line of the road, and inaugurated the movement that afterwards resulted in the act of Congress granting alternate sections of land along the line of the road, to aid in the construction, which with the aid granted by the State of Missouri, secured the completion of the road. At that time (1847), there was not a railroad west of the Mississippi river, and the people felt the necessity of having a railroad to convey their surplus products to market; and the active interest that Mr. Dunn took in this matter pointed to him as a proper person to assist in carrying out the wishes of the people in this matter, and as a consequence he was elected to the Legislature in 1850, mainly upon this issue.

In 1852 he was elected Clerk of the County Court of Caldwell county, which office he held until 1860. In 1854 he was elected Clerk of the Circuit Court, holding both offices. With an interval of two years, he held the circuit clerkship till 1866.

From 1862 to 1864 he filled with ability the office of Probate Judge. During the war, he was elected one of the Curators of the State University, serving part of a term, when he resigned.

While serving as clerk of the court he improved his leisure time in the study of law, and so assiduously did he prosecute his studies that in 1866 he was admitted to the practice of law by Judge Walter King, of the Circuit Court, and has been successfully engaged in the same ever since.

He became a Master Mason about 1857, in Mirable, Caldwell county. He is at present an active member and Past Master of Kingston Lodge, No. 118, A. F. & A. M.

In politics he was always a Whig until the disbanding of that party, when he united with the Republicans, with whom he has since acted.

His parents were Presbyterians, and he was raised in the teachings of that Church but never united with it. About the year 1859 he united with the Christian Church, of which he is still a member.

His first wife died in 1858, leaving eight children—four boys and four girls; of these, two sons and four daughters are now living. January 31, 1860, he married Miss Emma Amelia Dodge, daughter of Rev. Dwight Dodge, of Caldwell county, and a minister of the Christian Church. The issue of this marriage is two sons and one daughter.

Judge Dunn is of commanding presence, six feet in height, and weighs two hundred pounds. His manners are pleasing and his professional and private character above reproach.

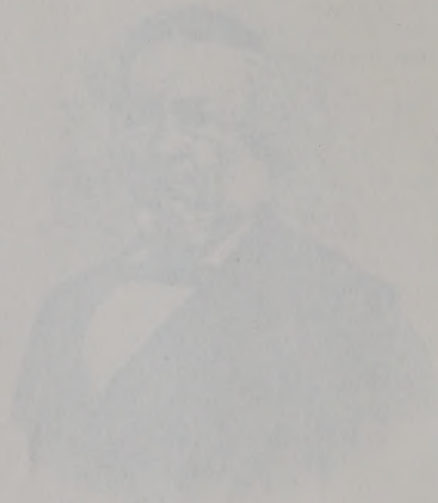

HON. GEORGE W. DUNN.

RICHMOND.

GEORGE WASHINGTON DUNN, the present judge of the 5th Judicial Circuit of Missouri, was born near Harrodsburg, Mercer county, Kentucky, October 15, 1815. His father, Major Lemuel Dunn, a pioneer farmer of Kentucky, was the son of Michael Dunn, of Irish parentage, but a native of Virginia, and a noble defender of his country in the war for the freedom of the American Colonies. The mother of the subject of this sketch, whose maiden name was Sarah Read Campbell, was also a native Virginian and of Irish descent. Her father, John Campbell, was also a soldier in the Revolutionary war.

Major Dunn died in 1828, leaving his family in limited circumstances, on a farm, when George was only thirteen years old. Young as he was, he worked diligently during summer, and attended school through the winter. He finished what schooling the family's finances would permit at Cane Run Academy, Mercer county, excelling in mathematics. Although unable to take the full course at one of the regular colleges, his unquenchable thirst for knowledge led him to eschew the usual pastimes of youth, and to devote every spare hour to study, so his ardor made up for what his poverty disallowed. His mental tastes were beyond the ordinary of young men, leading him into the higher classics, law, and also into the flowery fields of poetry.

HON. GEORGE W. DAVIS

MEMORIAL

George W. Davis, born in 1844, was a prominent politician and statesman. He served as the Governor of the State of New York from 1894 to 1898. During his tenure, he was known for his efforts in reforming the judiciary and improving the state's financial condition. Davis was also a member of the United States House of Representatives and the United States Senate. His leadership and dedication to public service earned him a lasting legacy in the history of New York State.

George W. Davis, born in 1844, was a prominent politician and statesman. He served as the Governor of the State of New York from 1894 to 1898. During his tenure, he was known for his efforts in reforming the judiciary and improving the state's financial condition. Davis was also a member of the United States House of Representatives and the United States Senate. His leadership and dedication to public service earned him a lasting legacy in the history of New York State.

At nineteen he engaged as clerk in a dry goods store in Nicholasville, Jessamine county, Kentucky; but he carried with him and used his books. At twenty he began the regular study of law and continued it industriously three years, only interrupted by regular intervals of school teaching, which he was compelled to follow for a support. In that time he attended the law department of Transylvania University, and was a member of the class of 1836 and 1837. Among his classmates were Beriah McGoffin, afterward governor of Kentucky; Richard Yates, afterward governor of Illinois; the present Hon. Otho R. Singleton, of Mississippi; Rev. Jonathan E. Spillman, of Kentucky, and the present Hon. Samuel H. Woodson, of Missouri. At the close of the term he was licensed to practice law by Judges Robertson and Marshall.

In the spring of 1839 Mr. Dunn settled in Richmond, Ray county, Missouri, and there opening an office, practiced in all the counties of the 5th Judicial Circuit. In the spring of 1841 he was appointed circuit attorney of the circuit to fill a vacancy, and in 1844 was elected to that office without opposition, and filled it until 1848. During those seven years, besides prosecuting the criminals in the circuit, he gave satisfactory attention to a large practice in civil cases. As his contemporaries at the bar, were Colonel A. W. Doniphan, Hon. David R. Atchison, Hon. William T. Wood, Governor Peter H. Burnett, Hon. James H. Birch, Governor Williard P. Hall, Hon. Robert D. Ray, General B. F. Stringfellow, and others of the most distinguished lawyers of the state. In 1848 Mr. Dunn was appointed judge of the 5th Judicial Circuit as successor of Hon. Austin A. King, who was that year elected governor of the state. He was elected to the same position in 1851 and again in 1857.

In 1861 Judge Dunn retired from office, declining to take the test oath required of officers by the state convention of that year, and resumed the practice of law. In 1863 he was again elected judge of his old circuit by a large majority, and remained on the bench until 1865, when he with others, was thrown out of office by the "vacating ordinance" of the state convention. He again returned to the practice of his profession and followed it until 1874, when he was elected without opposition to his old position as judge of the 5th Judicial Circuit, which he now holds.

Whether as lawyer or judge, few jurists of this country hold higher rank than does Judge Dunn.

The prime of his life has been spent at the bar and on the bench, his contests have been with the legal giants of the West; his success is attested by his long continuance in office, in the affection of his fellow-attorneys, and in the universal confidence reposed in him by the people of his district. A late writer said of him: "He only sought the honors of the law;" the compliment is only half true; while no true lawyer is insensible to the "honors of the law," Judge Dunn has striven to honor the law more than to seek its honors. As a judge, he comprehends at once the law and facts of the case; and his analytical powers enable him to develop the points with such clearness and force, that his decisions commend themselves alike to the bar and to the people, being always fortified by the law and the facts. Juries are seldom called for when he is on the bench.

Judge Dunn has always been a Democrat in politics; but never a candidate for any political office. He was a member of the state convention of 1861, called to consider the Federal relations of Missouri. In that body he voted against secession and all radical measures. He has ever exhibited a deep interest in the cause of Education, and has been a warm friend of all educational institutions. He took an active part in establishing Richmond College, which has become a flourishing institution. When a young lawyer he became a member of Richmond Lodge, No. 57, A. F. & A. M., and at different times has held various important offices in that body. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

On the 19th of May, 1841, at Nicholasville, Kentucky, George W. Dunn was married to Miss Susan Martha Henderson, daughter of Bennet Henderson and grand-daughter of Colonel Joseph Crockett, an officer in the Revolutionary war. They have had five children, only one of whom, John Henderson Dunn, is now living.

Judge Dunn has always evinced a taste for literature, which he has cultivated to a high degree. He has divided his affections between the goddess of justice and the fair nymph of poesy, and without slighting either, shows that he has worshipped both. He has given to the public many poetical effusions, gems of rare beauty and acknowledged merit. He is the only poet who has found in the prosy proceedings of a court of justice themes for poetical song. "The Temple of Justice," written by him a few years ago and dedicated to the bench and bar, has been widely published and admired. We close his sketch with one of his gems, showing that the robe of ermine fits him no more gracefully than does the chaplet of poesy.

THE ERMINE AND THE HARP.

The Ermine's hue of spotless white
 Invokes the wearer's earnest ken,
 As law and equity unite
 To shield and bless the sons of men;
 For heaven-born Truth by right prevails
 And baffles every crafty scheme,
 When Justice holds the impartial scales
 And Mercy's tears bedew the beam.

Fraud writhes beneath the Jurist's feet,
 And Falsehood from his presence flies,
 Twin sisters these that dare not meet
 The piercing glances of his eyes;
 And fetters that the strong apply
 To feeble limbs are snapped in twain,
 And wrong's foul emblems scattered lie
 Around the bondman's broken chain.

O bring my Harp! Its chords shall send
 Exultant notes to greet all ears,
 Notes whose harmonies will blend
 With music sounding from the spheres;
 For right has triumphed over wrong,
 And Justice holds unbroken sway;
 The victory demands a song,
 A sweet song that will live for aye.

Re: Royce McCoy

(Illinois)

Calkins was very young when his father died and was thrown onto his own resources to battle against a cold world. December 29, 1849, married Miss Dina C. Bennett, daughter of William and Sarah (Bronson) Bennett, natives of Connecticut, where she was born October 10, 1832. By this marriage there was one child, Sarah B., who was born in Connecticut, June 5, 1849. They remained in Connecticut a few years, came to LaSalle county, Illinois, where they remained a short time, when they went to Hancock county, where he had charge of the church near Carthage. They remained there one year. They then returned to LaSalle county, when he organized several churches and supplied their pulpits. From there he came to Springfield, Illinois, where he held several meetings. From there he had a call at Collinsville, where he held several protracted meetings and supplied the pulpit one year. He then came to Auburn where he established a church and has remained since. His first meetings were well attended and a good number connected themselves with the church. In 1870, they erected a church edifice, the dimensions being forty by fifty, a frame building large enough to accommodate the congregation. There is a Sabbath school in connection with the church which is in a prosperous condition. The present officers: Superintendent, Thomas Parks; Bible class teacher, Allen Gordon; teachers, Miss Parks, Alice Welch, Caroline Spencer, Sarah Conklin. The average attendance now is about twenty-five.

L. B. McCarton, grocer, Auburn, Illinois, was born in Shelby county, Ohio, January 16, 1835; son of Colin B. and Mary (Black) McCarton; there was a family of three children, two sons and one daughter, L. B., Julia, and Colin B. His father was a millwright by trade, which he followed until his death, which occurred in Cass county, Indiana, in 1837. His mother is still living with Mr. McCarton. L. B. was reared on a farm and received a liberal education; married Miss Sarah A. Fortney, a daughter of Jacob and Ann Fortney of Pennsylvania, who were early settlers of Ohio; she was born September 1837. The fruits of this union are six children, five of whom are living, Oscar, Charles L., Mary, Frank and Viola. Mr. McC. is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and a member of A. O. U. W., of Auburn. Mr. and Mrs. McC. are members of the Presbyterian Church. Coming to this county in 1866 he embarked in farming, which he followed until 1868, when he engaged in his present business, groceries and provisions. In politics he is a Republican, has held several local offices of trust, and in 1880 represented the town as supervisor.

Royce McCoy, carpenter and joiner, Auburn, Illinois, was born in Washington county, Indiana, December 4, 1826; son of Royce, Sr., and Malinda (Pound) McCoy; his father was a pioneer preacher, preaching Sunday and working on a farm through the week; he died in Indiana in 1836; his mother living some years later, died in 1866; they died as they had lived, sincere Christians. Royce, Jr., was reared on a farm, and received what schooling the country afforded at the time. When seventeen years of age, he was apprenticed as a wagon-maker, where he remained about two years; he then went to Fulton county, where he was employed at his trade for a couple of years. In 1847, came to Morgan county; previous to coming, and when twenty years of age, married Mary Hattabough, who died July 11, 1849. Two years later he married Mrs. Mary Barton, widow of Henry Barton, a native of North Carolina, and born in 1827. In 1856, came to Auburn; there were two houses on the west side of the railroad, where Auburn now stands, and at that time the town was called Wineman, after a man by the name of Philip Wineman, who first laid out the town. Mr. McCoy has been identified with Auburn from its infancy, and has always worked for its best interest. Is a member of the M. E. church, and has been identified with it for thirty years.

Henry Dawson, Jr., Superintendent of Tile, Brick and Auburn Coal Shaft, Auburn, Illinois, was born in Richland county, Ohio, on the 16th day of December, 1855; son of Henry, Sr., and Rebecca (Carvan) Dawson; father a native of England; mother of Ohio. His mother died in Indianapolis, Indiana, in 1875. In 1878, came to Auburn, where he was cashier of the Auburn Bank over two years; he gave up that position and engaged in his present occupation. Married Miss Minnie Van Zile, daughter of Abram Van Zile, of Hancock county, Illinois. She was born in Rutland county, Vermont, in 1857. UNCLE CHARLEY DUNN - EX-SLAVE OF HAMILTON

Narrators: Mrs. H.D. Eldredge and Mrs. Sarah Haggerty of Hamilton

Charles Dunn, colored, Uncle Charley as he was known in Hamilton for many years, was brought from Virginia with a lot of other slaves when a boy of three or five years away from his own kin and came to Ray County, Missouri. He was bought by a family by the name of Thompson. As he grew old enough, his duties was to care for and act as playmate for the Thompson children. In later years, he did other work until he reached manhood. His master not needing his work, allowed him to work for others and he had his wages to do with as he pleased. Saving his wages, he in time was able to buy the freedom of his slave wife, Aunt Harriett Dunn, as she was known to Hamilton people. After his freedom, he came to Caldwell County, and lived on a farm in the Duston District; later they moved to Hamilton where they lived a useful upright life. Uncle Charley, dying in Hamilton at the age (as he said) of over ninety years.

Joe Thompson of Breckenridge was his master's son and used to invite Uncle Charley up every year. Thompson, the Kansas City photographer, was some kin to his master and used to come and see Uncle Charley bringing money and other gifts to the old family servitor.

Uncle Charley lived in a house east of the Tuttle-Eldredge home, which is now used for a storehouse.

*Some slave families assumed the surnames of their previous owners.
"Uncle Charley Dunn" was not connected to our Dunn.*

THE MCAFEE FAMILY IN KINGSTON TOWNSHIP 1865

Narrator: Mrs. Mariam McAfee, 77

Mrs. McAfee is the widow of William McAfee, the second of that name in Caldwell county, apparently no relation to the older pioneer, Wallace McAfee or McFee in 1835.

Hamilton McAfee, the first of this line of McAfee families in the county, was born in Indiana 1820, was a cooper by trade and came into Kingston township, Caldwell county 1865 as a farmer. Having some education, he began teaching also as a farmer-teacher and was the first county school commissioner of whom people seem to know, serving in 1866, at least, and for some years after. Readers are referred to the history of that office in this county as found in this series of interviews for his work. He died 1890 and is buried in the Kingston cemetery. His wife was Hannah Hosea of Indiana who died 1876. He was a Civil War soldier.

William McAfee son of the above was also a vital part of Caldwell county as an early teacher and a lawyer. He was born in Blue Lick, Clark Co. Ind. 1850, and started to teach while not yet 20. He was one of the first teachers in the "new" brick school at Kingston being the first assistant 1874, when Steve Rogers was the principal. He held that place three years, in the meantime studying law in the law office of Dunn and Johnson at Kingston (the common way to get a law education then). Dunn was Lemuel Dunn and Johnson was Crosby Johnson later of Hamilton. He was admitted to the bar by court examination June 1876. He married Miriam Johnson, daughter of Capt. E.D. Johnson 1875. In his late years, he moved to Hamilton and was law partner to Crosby Johnson son of the Crosby Johnson with whom he had studied law.

Mr. and Mrs. McAfee had five children. By a sad accident, two of these died within a few hours of each other in the early 60s. Mrs. McAfee had prepared a mess of greens, and had by mistake included one plant which was poison. The two children died from the poison. A third child Mrs. Agnes Keeny died after reaching womanhood. A son, Floyd McAfee is a resident of this city.

THE CRAWFORD FAMILY AT KINGSTON IN 1867 AND HAMILTON IN 1875

Narrator: Mrs. Joseph Crawford, 91, Hamilton, Missouri

Mrs. Joseph Crawford born 1843 now lives in Hamilton but she came into Caldwell County as a Kingston resident. She was born in Washington County Virginia, was of a Southern family and knew all the troubles of the Southern people after the war was over. Her husband came from Tennessee. After the war conditions were so hard in the south, that her husband, who did not have much, decided to come west. They came up the Mississippi river from Tennessee on a boat and it took them four days and four nights to get to Illinois, where Crawford's brother had already settled. They had with them very little baggage - for they had sold their old Conastoga wagon and some furniture before starting. In Illinois, they ran up against Bill Schwartz who came from Caldwell County and told them how much better bargains in homes they could get in Missouri. He said if they were not satisfied with Caldwell County he would pay their way back to Illinois. He brought them on to Kingston where Crawford began his trade of shoe maker to which he had been apprenticed as a boy. It was a trade which meant good money those days. Often he made $7 a day in making (not mending) boots and shoes.

They bought their land from Dr. Lemuel Dunn father of the late Dwight (Pete) Dunn of Hamilton. On this he built a two room shack and they lived there till his death 1872 aged 27, he lies in the old part of the Kingston Cemetery. ✓

During the stay in Kingston, he held the highest office in the Masonic lodge and most of his friends were Masons. At that time Hugh Chain and family kept the frame hotel (afterwards Cadman House). Dr. Dunn, Dr. Neff and Dr. Smith were the doctors. She recalled old man Turner and the older Spivey, Henry Botoff and a druggist Gudgeall. Most of the people there were Northerners and so Crawford used to say to his wife "We are in a Yankee settlement. We have to lay low," especially so when the war had been over only three or four years. ✓

After her husband's death Mrs. Crawford and two children Kate and Lula in 1875 moved to Hamilton to get something to do. They were very poor. For a while she sewed for a living and took her pay largely in vegetables, milk, meat, needing just enough money to pay rent. At that time she lived on the site of the Methodist parsonage. Finally she began taking care of Mrs. Dort who was an invalid, and stayed in the Dort home as house keeper forty years. There she still lives. Her daughter Kate now owns that very home and Ben Dort, who formerly owned it, died a few years ago at the County Farm.

During 1875, there was a scarlet fever epidemic here. Her daughter Kate had a severe illness; and when she recovered she began peeling off. The doctor had not known what the illness was but finally decided it was scarlet fever. She was the second one to have it in the 1875 epidemic. It grew worse and killed several children. She had caught it from visiting another little girl who was sick. You see there were no scarlet fever signs those days and no quarantine. So it was no wonder they had bad epidemics. At that time, the doctors in town were Dr. Stoller who had his office at his home south of the present Methodist parsonage. Dr. Tuttle in Claypool Hotel, Dr. Brown just starting out as a young physician. Dr. Ressigeau in present Katherine Houghton home. The dentists were Dr. Simrock above Nash Produce store and Dr. Stevens over Wilson and O'Neil. He made a set of uppers for Mrs. Crawford which she has used ever since (56 years) without a bit of repair.

CALDWELL COUNTY POOR FARM

Narrator: Mrs. Ada Dunn of Hamilton, Missouri

Mrs. Dunn is daughter of Sherman Minor Bassett and Elinor Fort. The Bassetts came to Caldwell County in the late seventies from Coshocton county Ohio and at their arrival at Kingston they landed in the "poor farm" as they like to say. At any rate, they stayed for some weeks with Eldert Fort and wife who for several years managed the county poor farm. Mr. Bassett's new farm which he bought "sight unseen" through Mr. Fort is the present Seth Hootman farm near Mirabile. Mrs. Dunn was about thirteen when she came west to Missouri and expected to see a very wild and wooly country - despite the nice things the Forts had written back. Missouri had a bad reputation in the East.

Having lived in the Poor Farm, Mrs. Dunn knew something of its history. A family by the name of Nixon owned the place which is now the poor farm. He died and the administrator of the estate, Mr. Orr sold it to the County 1873. At first there was a small house on the place which is the back of the present large building. They had a custom those days of keeping mildly insane cases there as well as the aged poor. The above Mr. Orr's daughter said that hardly had the Poor Farm started when they had two hard cases - Billy Blood who was crazy and Ann McCollum who was so afflicted that she could not sit in a chair and she sat hunched up on the floor. Both these old folks are buried in the graveyard that is on the farm for the old folks who have no friends to claim their bodies.

Interviewed July 1934.

*Mrs. Ada (Bassett) Dunn
(Estranged?) wife of grand maw's oldest brother David Dunn,*

We used to go there every year when I was a child!

Two scenes of our Fox Hunt grounds. This is an annual meeting place of the hunt, 1/4 mile south of town on Highway No. 13; incorporated under the name of North Missouri Fox Hunters Association. In 1922 it was moved from the Watson Grove near Lawson, Missouri, to Kingston. In the Otto Walnut Grove, northeast of town; in 1946 the association purchased the present location and held its first hunt at the new location, second week in August with Floyd Cawthon, President. Dogs are entered from many states; valuable prizes given to the owners. Entertaining and educational programs draws large crowds from far and near. Busy men give their time and energy to make the fox hunt a success each year.

The table has several rows and columns, with some entries that are difficult to decipher due to the handwriting and mirroring.
